The Community Futures, Community Lore website, Stepping Stone guides and companion resources originated from the work of the Intercultural Oral History Project, Community LORE, Youth In Focus, the UC Davis Center for Regional Change Putting Youth on the Map program and many, many community collaborators.

Many people were part of creating and compiling these materials. We are grateful to the staff, community partners, youth researchers, college students and advocates who shaped this work and poured wisdom, time and heart into its evolution. We could never name you all or express the depth of our gratitude. On the next page, we've tried to reconstruct a list of staff members and others who worked on the materials and projects shared here.

A few key people and organizations made possible this particular stage of activity – combing through archival materials, updating them and making them newly accessible as a web-based resource.
